

Abstract of the Disclosure

A planter has a drainage spout that extends downwardly and outwardly to a drain opening horizontally beyond an underlying structure such as a porch railing.